

Ways and Importance of maintaining environmental Cleanliness

Jigneshkumar Vinubhai Vaghela
Research Scholar
Sardar Patel University
Vallabh Vidyanagar-388120
Gujarat, India
Email id – jvvaghela@yahoo.com

Earth is a fortunate planet which has been gifted with a natural environment. It is made up of the five elements of sky, water, light, air and earth. Each of these elements has a major role in the existence of nature and the living world. That is why the Indian tradition considers these elements. The other is preserved. Creation is not possible without the existence of each other. In every work connected with human life, every element of the environment plays a part in one form or another and because of this, every action of the human being does not remain without impact on it, as well as the environmental elements. The imbalance of the living world inevitably affects the existence of the living world which is an eternal truth which is a threat to the living world. In the present time human beings have misused or polluted the various resources of nature for their personal benefit and have created many types of problems which are very necessary and urgent to remedy. It is a matter of importance, otherwise many questions will arise in the form of a threat to human life in the future, the importance of how to remedy it, etc., has been discussed in detail in this research article.

Key Word:-

Environmental cleanliness, sanitation, necessary, environmental elements